
Joe Becker

Director, Industrial Analytics Practice

Joe manages and cultivates the close working relationship between Uptake and our iconic industry partner within the rail center of excellence. Joe has been dedicated to the Uptake rail practice since mid 2015 guiding product development and customer engagement from initial product prototype stage through full commercial launch in 12 months. Joe ensures our products meet technical requirements, exceed partner expectations, delight users, and ultimately deliver tremendous value. Joe also works to evangelize the Uptake platform externally for new and prospective partners across several verticals. A passionate entrepreneur and trained Mechanical Engineer Joe leverages deep technical expertise gained by spending over a decade managing the people, process, and outcomes of large scale infrastructure projects around the globe. Joe has been responsible for final design and signoff on key components, managing site layout, technical specification writing, and delivering scope reports to high ranking international government officials.